You don't need land to live the good life -
KEEPING CHICKENS IN THE CITY

Waking up to a cock-a-doodle-doo and skipping outside to collect the eggs for breakfast is no longer exclusive to the country bumpkins of this world. More and more urban dwellers are outsmarting the city-slick fox, and maintaining a happy, healthy garden or backyard flock.

The Urban Hen by Paul Peacock is the perfect companion for the city poultry keeper. Just published by Spring Hill, this practical guide will show you everything you need to know about the joys and responsibilities of keeping chickens.

Based on his own experience Peacock shows you how to:

- Find the best poultry for the small garden and how to house them properly
- Feed your birds, tune in to their daily needs and enjoy your own eggs
- Avoid annoying the neighbours by showing that it is possible to keep poultry without attracting unwelcome pests
- Keep happy, healthy birds and learn their daily routine
- Recognise poorly hens and how to treat them or get help
- Incubate and care for fertilised eggs and raise chicks

Paul Peacock is Editor of Home Farmer Magazine and has written extensively for the gardening press. His book, Patio Produce came out in May. Educated at Leeds and Manchester universities, he is author of many books on gardening and self-sufficiency and advises on gardening and cooking on internet channels.

The Urban Hen is published by Spring Hill, an imprint of How To Books Ltd www.howtobooks.co.uk and is available at $20.00 in major bookshops and online retailers across the USA and Canada. ISBN 978-1-905862-27-6
